Now With F.M.L.

TERRIFIC

It's called a switch: putting value on time spent waiting and sending a bill. A lot of people have tried to figure a means to bill various levels of government for time involved in doing public bookkeeping. But it is paid, sadly, by passing the cost on to customers.

But Donna Puckett of Chattanooga, Tenn., waited three hours in a doctor's office the other day, according to Associated Press, and billed him for $802.35 for her time waiting.

The doctor took it in good humor and returned payment in $802.35 of play money.

The Chattanoogan figured $20 for hourly wages, $50 for preventive medicine, $500 for spinal damage, $60 for education (2 kids out of school for 3 hours), $125 for consultations and $7.35 for dinner.

She justified each item with an explanation, including the item for consultations, tongue-in-cheeking she cured two other patients completely, agreed with the doctor's diagnosis on two and sent a fifth to an osteopath.

I imagine the doctor enjoyed the bill more than anything since the days when malpractice suits were all but unknown.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Humility is a gift we lose when we think we have it.

It's a pity, but due to the pull of gravity, it takes less energy to open the mouth than to close it.

AND...

Remember that praise does wonders for the sense of hearing.

Mayor To Hear Citizens

Rosebud's new mayor announced that he will be at City Hall on Wednesdays each week from ten to noon to hear suggestions and complaints from citizens. "I think that the city can better serve its citizens through a program such as this, and it will work if taxpayers will cooperate for the good of the community," said Mayor Lee Ray McAtee.

Predator War Declared

An all-out war on predators has been declared in Lampasas County and bounties will be paid for bobcats, red foxes, coyotes and baby predators, with farmers contributing five cents an acre to finance the program. Bounties will be set at $100 for coyotes, $50 for red foxes, $25 for bobcats and $10 for pups and kittens.

West Point Accepts Petty

James E. "Jimmy" Petty Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Petty of Rockdale, has been accepted into the U. S. Military Academy at West Point as a plebe cadet -- and he credits the Rockdale public schools with providing him the academic and athletic foundation to make it possible. Petty will receive the equivalent of a full undergraduate scholarship to West Point.

Child Molester Sought

Georgetown and Williamson County residents are being asked to keep a lookout for a man who has reportedly molested at least six young girls in the Round Rock area. Police say the suspect seems to search out girls between the ages of 6 and 12, selecting them after careful study rather than at random. The incidents occur during early morning and late afternoon hours, police said.

Patrolmen Investigate Death

Highway patrolmen are investigating the death of a Calvert man who was found burned in his car at about 7:30 a.m. April 5. Causes of both the death of George Defoe Cooper and the fire are unknown. Officers said the car apparently became stuck in a hole and that the fire started from electrical malfunction in the engine. Cooper may have suffered a heart attack, patrolmen said.

Gas Nozzles Stolen

About 31 service stations along Interstate 35 between Dallas and Waco reported the theft of nozzles from gasoline pumps, the value of which may exceed $10,000. The nozzles apparently were cut off with a sharp instrument, probably a hatchet. Six to 10 nozzles were taken from each station and were valued at $45 each.

Gatesville Student Sentenced

A former Gatesville State School student was sentenced to 20 years in prison after he pleaded guilty to a charge of aggravated robbery. The 17-year-old youth was indicted in connection with a Jan. 3 assault against a youth activities supervisor at the State School. The supervisor sustained head injuries in the attack and his billfold and keys were taken.

'A Living Legend'

AG Hill Praises Former Sheriff

Presentation of a bronze bust of former Sheriff Carl Black sculptured by Cameron's James Brock highlighted an appreciation dinner for Black Wednesday night attended by nearly 300 friends.

Guest speakers included Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill, Cong. W. R. (Bob) Poage, State Rep. Dan Kubiak, County Tax Assessor-Collector Valter White, and Narvie Caperton, who was MC for the affair.

Hill called Black "a living legend" and said Black gave fully of himself for 36 years, "never flinching, and giving all he had." He said Black was a man of "unquestioned integrity and faultless honesty."

Black served as Milam County sheriff from 1944 to 1976. He was also a deputy sheriff for four years before being elected sheriff.

Hill said Black could have done many things with his life, but chose public service, the highest calling. "Our country has been built to be a great one by the Carl Blacks." he said.

The attorney general in his speech said heroin is now the number one problem in the state and is a challenge to new law enforcement officers. He said law enforcement must be supported by citizens to be effective.

Poage said the county "had a great public servant in Black," and people in the county believe in maintaining law and order. He expressed appreciation for what Black had done for the county.

Kubiak introduced Hill as "the person I would most like to see become governor of Texas."

White, a lifelong friend of Black, said Black "could see both sides of the fence, and would help anyone he could, especially youg people." He said Black was a "tireless worker, who would often go without sleep and got the job done before he quit."

Black said, "I don't know what I could say to help myself now--I've tried to live up to these kind of words these people have said, and I always will."

He attributed his success as sheriff to the people of Milam County. "If you don't have the backing of the good people of the county, you can't do a good job," he said.

The bronze bust was presented to Black at the close of the program, and is a near life-size replica of the former sheriff.

During a short press conference Hill said he is "seriously considering running for governor in 1978, but will not make a final decision until late June.

Family Land Heritage Honor Open To County

May 1 marks the resumption of the Texas Family Land Heritage Program and additional statewide farms and ranches now have the opportunity to join the 16 Milam County properties which have already been registered, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.

Countywide honorees are part of the more than 1,100 registrants who have qualified since the Program was instituted by the Texas Department of Agriculture in 1973. All of the honorees can trace continuous production on their historic lands back 100 years or more to family member founders.

Application forms for the Program may be obtained from county judges, county historical commission chairmen, and by writing the Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711. Deadline for submitting completed applications is August 15.

The land under consideration must meet the following old U.S. Census definition of a farm: 10 acres or more with agricultural assets of $50 or more a year or, if less than 10 acres, sales of at least $250 a year.

The land must have been agriculturally productive and owned and operated by members of the family for 100 years of more. If all the land was ever rented out, it will not qualify.

If, however, only a portion of it was leased, and as much as 10 acres were retained in the family for agricultural production which netted sales of a least $250 annually, it may still be eligible.

The applicant must live on the land and work the property, or if living off the acreage, must actively manage and direct the everyday operation of the farm or ranch.

County Sets Charges For Other Prisoners

An agreement for charges to be paid by other counties for housing prisoners in the Milam County Jail was reached by county commissioners Thursday in a regular meeting.

Judge O. B. Harden presented a request from Sheriff Leroy Broadus who has received calls from other counties, particularly Burleson, for housing their prisoners in Milam's jail.

A charge of $7.50 a day will be levied for each prisoner, plus any medical bills and damage that may be inflicted by the prisoners. The county would also be liable for any other expenses.

Commissioners also authorized the sheriff to purchase protective screens for the sheriff's department cars.

Harden said Tommy Chamberlain, who asked to be appointed to the vacant Precinct 1 constable's office, asked Thursday that the matter be passed at that meeting.

A representative from Acme Vending Co. of Austin met with the court to explain the advantages to the county of placing cold drink and a hot drink machines in the courthouse. He said the machines will be serviced twice a week and ther will be no odor problem. Commissioners voted to try the new machines.

County Clerk Wayne Wieser pointout that the courthouse needs a pay phone, as lignite mining people sometimes tie up the phones in the county clerk's office for long periods of time.

Vote Recount Reset For Today

A vote recount for the city election ballots scheduled for Friday was postponed until 9 a.m. Monday morning so a representative of the Secretary of State's office can be in attendance.

The recount was requested by Odessa Poole, who lost her bid for a council seat to Dale Smith by three votes.

The recount committee includes Charles Kunz, chairman; Mrs. Shirley Kelly and Mrs. Pauline Friemel. They will meet to count the votes at City Hall.

Banks Report Gains

Milam and area banks show substantial gains in deposits as of March 31 compared with the same period last year, according to figures released for a bank call.

Banks in Cameron, Rockdale and Thorndale showed gains of up to over $2 million in deposits, while others showed gains of close to a million.

A Two-Way Test...

President Carter dropped his $50 tax rebate proposal, which would have meant $10 millions less tax, in the face of improving business, signs of inflation and Senate opposition.

He may have conceded the proposal to gather all the rapport possible with Congress and the public for his upcoming energy proposals.

They include eliminating natural gas as a fuel for power plants and going more to coal as the base fuel source for the next few years.

We hear the proposal also discusses taxes on heavier cars which consume more gasoline and taxes on gasoline in annual yearly increases at the pump until consumption levels.

A facedown on energy has been forthcoming in Washington for years. It is going to be a test of this president's persuasive powers and the willingness of people to limit the size of new autos they buy and the distances they drive.

Alaskan oil in some quantities will become available within the year, but it may not be enough to slake the continuous rise in appetite for energy in the U. S.

One proposal to avert another energy crunch with Middle East sources is to buy up $10 billions worth and store it around the country against such a contingency.

The President has indicated his current popularity rating of 70 per cent plus may dip when his energy plan is outlined.

It is certain that this Administration cannot defer dealing with the energy problem. It is not going away. It is growing.

The response to such proposals for a mobile society will be a measure both of Mr. Carter's leadership, but the country's desire for solutions to a basic problem.

The Granger And North Fork...

It just may be that Granger Dam and North Fork Dam near Georgetown will get additional funds this year in a final effort to finish the projects, begun in the early 70's.

Corps of Engineers is pushing completion times up to finish Granger Dam by January 1, 1979, and North Fork Dam by May, 1978.

It would be justice for these dams to be completed, for all the years of planning and work already committed. It would not seem Mr. Carter is planning to cut these projects off, but it is possible funding might be delayed. A lot of dam projects not yet begun or just on the drawing boards have been clipped out of federal budgeting.

So Corps of Engineers is wise in pushing up completion dates by going to double shifts, weather permitting.

Engineers are encouraged that fund transfers will allow an additional $9.7 millions to be added to this fiscal year budget of $10.5 millions for the dams.

When rains are tough, these additional dams will control areas where real damage occurs. The added value of recreation and water conservation and storage will be major in terms of future needs for water in this area of Texas.

Central Texas is fortunate in being the area traversed by much if not most of the water flowing northwest to southeast and the Gulf.

These two dams are additional reservoirs to contain some of that water before it is needlessly damaging to crops, terrain and all but lost for real use by cities and towns along the Brazos River system to the sea.

Morality Of Business

By MARTIN E. MARTY

Editor's Note: This is the fourteenth of 16 articles in the series, "Moral Choices in Contemporary Society." In this article, Martin Marty of the Univesity of Chicago assesses the state of business ethics and suggests a program of reform. These articles, which explore the controversial moral dilemmas that perplex Americans today, were written for COURSES BY NEWSPAPER, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

"The only time a businessman makes the national media is when he is polluting the streams, making obscene profits or corrupting a poor innocent politician."

With those words columnist Patrick Buchanan buddied up to the business people in his audience at the California Trucking Association last year. Buchanan was expressing a widely shared distaste for "the national media," and he knew he could be snide about the "poor, innocent policitician."

What Buchanan's words further suggest, however, is the familiarity with which the business person has entered the nation's Rogue's Gallery. As recently as 1957 Father Walter Ong could speak of "the complete social acceptability of business in the United States." That acceptability has diminished considerably since then.

Citizens daily see media images of prominent business leaders who have polluted something, done something "obscene" in the world of profits, or corrupted someone. Payoffs, bribes, false advertising, expense-account cheating, and price-fixing make weekly headlines.

The whole business system is under attack, and people of conscience within it have sometimes joined outside critics in questioning its value and future.

"SNATCHING TO HOARD"

To speak as most people do of a "moral breakdown" implies that once the business world stood up morally. Nostalgia, however, casts a false warm glow over the past. It obscures the centuries-old complaint that the search for profits based on competition has always brought out the worst in people. The "robber barons" are familiar figures in our past.

What economic historian R. H. Tawney called "the life of snatching to hoard" always seemed to go with the territory.

It would be hard to find a historian who believes that human nature has fundamentally changed -- or to find one who does not now believe that the selfish principle has gotten out of hand or that corruption is an acute problem. What went wrong?

A MORAL DECLINE

Most observers agree that the turn from small-scale business in intimate society to our unresponsive huge corporation in the proverbial "mass society" made possible a decline in business people's sense of responsibility. Prices today are virtually fixed and the range of options is limited in an era of near-monopoly by large corporations. Meanwhile, these firms have learned to use advertising to lull consumers into the notion that their interests are being well-served when in fact they may not be.

A second reason for breakdown is usually associated with the fact that the value-system behind business in earlier times has been virtually destroyed. Once, in the view, people shared beliefs about a divine purpose in what they were doing. They agreed on certain moral norms and goals. Sociologist Daniel Bell notes that "the great historic religions of the West" have all drawn the lesson "that a community has to have a sense of moral norms." That sense disappears as moral cynicism spreads.

The ancient idea that what I as a bussinessman do is part of a sacred purpose and that that purpose imposes some restraint is hard to cherish when the society loses its religious outlooks. This decline of the spiritual outlook does not lead to a mere vacuum. G. K. Chesterton noted that "when people don't believe in God, they don't then believe in nothing, they believe in anything." They believe in competition and profit for their own sake, and make idols of these. "I'll get mine." Or, says Bell, they believe in simple hedonism and the pleasure principle.

IN DEFENSE OF BUSINESS

A spokesperson for business might respond to these attacks by reminding us that our society as a whole has made a choice to organize the world with business near its center. And business is simpley not based on altruism or self-sacrifice.

Business does not exist fundamentally for the service of all. The first moral duty of business is to return a profit on its investors' outlay. Secondarily, the business apologist might say, the public can be served when competition does lead to excellence and the lot of consumers is improved.

The moralists and the business apologists, then, operate in different worlds and the public is caught between them. But people have neither become satisfied with the way things are nor are they ready to turn to revolutionary alternatives. They will look for reform within the order we no have, or for a transforming of that order on gradual terms. Three proposals stand out above others among reformers and transformers.

A PROGRAM FOR REFORM

The first asks business prople to see that "we are members one of another." For them to insist on being entirely isolated and independent is futile. Business leaders who stopped caring about the causes of poverty or crime in the cities are paying a price as their investments suffer with the death of the cities. The essence of business may remain competition and profit making, but conscientious leaders see more reasons for having their concern spill over into a regard for their employees' well-being, for recognizing the dignity of labor, for human relations in a time of change in the understanding of the role of women, of racial minorities, and the like.

Second, while self-sacrifice and business are not simply compatible, some of the business leaders are taking a second look at their polluting, their misuse of limited natural resources, their exploitation of employees and customers. Some are beginning to see that working for long-range self-interest, which includes some vision of a future, is preferable to short-range and thus destructive self-interest.

Finally, personal morality can make a difference even in a partly unreformed system -- the only kind of system humans will ever get. "All the kids do it," the excuse few adults really tolerate, has been elevated to principle in many parts of the business world. But if many "kids" indeed "do it" and some of them end up exposed in the Rogue's Gallery others manifestly do not.

What one moral thinker calls an "ethics of character" seems to be coming back, not as a substitute for reform of the system but as an agent of its reform.

If the code words Vietnam and Watergate are to mean anything in the future, they will represent a public awareness that those spheres of Big Business, Big Government, and the like -- in short the Establishment Power Structure -- are run by little people. It was individuals who chose or might not have chosen illegal acts. It was persons who went to court. And it was men and women who acted morally to turn the directions. Somewhere along the way their character had been formed to withstand the temptations to "get their own" or to be content with short-range self-interest of the worst sort.

Employees and competitors usually know what standards are being projected "at the top."

Business people concerned about the moral condition are finding it necessary to begin by exploring their own value systems, the images they project, the decisions they make in the pyramids of power. Business does not have to be as culpable and tainted as it currently is. To see business in a larger context of values, to have it work for at least longer-range self interests, and to help society develop and accent people of moral character in power is not a program that will satisfy all moralists, prophets, or utopians.

But these are at least first steps for those who want to produce a more humane world, both for the people who are responsible for business and for those who are its victims and beneficiaries.

Potholes Mean Tire Hazards

The winter of 1976-77, the coldest on record in many parts of the United States, is expected to produce a bumper crop of potholes on the nation's streets and highways, according to the Tire Industry Safety Council.

"Winter weather always takes its toll on our streets and highways, but this spring we expect the damage to be heavier than ever because of the unusually severe cold," says Council Chairman Malcolm R. Lovell, Jr. "Once the snow and ice have disappeared, the tire hazards remain -- potholes, cracks, sand and loose gravel."

"This is probably going to be the toughest winter on our roads in recent history," said Tom Hyland of the Federal Highway Administration. "We expect the damage to be very severe, creating hazards to both the tires and the automobile.

"During winter, water frequently works its way to the sub course of the pavement and freezes. This constant freezing and thawing causes patches in pavement to break out," Hyland said.

"When the water runs away it creates hollow spaces under the pavement and traffic simply pounds it down and breaks it up, especially on local streets and secondary roads which aren't constructed as durably as our main highways," he added.

The Tire Industry Safety Council says only proper care and maintenance of tires will insure safety and savings during the haz of spring driving.

The Council recommends three precautions drivers should take:

1. Insure that the tires are properly inflated. Under or over-inflated tires only increase the chance of disablement when hitting a pothole with sufficient force.

2. Slow down. The force of impact between tires and stones or potholes increases sharply with speed, according to the U. S. Department of Transportation.

3. Avoid hitting potholes if possible, but keep an eye out for other motorists when leaving your lane or swerving to miss a damaged place in the pavement.

"Modern tires are built to 'take it,' but there is a limit to what rubber and fabric will endure," said Lovell. "If you want to avoid cuts, bruises and blowouts, slow down on bad roads and give your tires a chance."

In addition to possible tire damage from striking potholes, the automobile itself may suffer too. Tire and wheel balance and the vehicle's front end alignment may be thrown off, the Council says.

Night Class Registration Set At TJC

Preregistration for summer night classes at Temple Junior College is now under way and will continue through April 22.

Students planning to attend night classes during the summer sessions should arrange to preregister by April 22. Counselors will be available on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights and students should call the counseling center at 773-9961, ext. 41, for an appointment one day in advance. Students who preregister at this time can complete registration by mail.

The eight-week summer night session will be May 30- July 21. Courses to be offered include both technical - vocational and academic classes.

Additional information and copies of the class schedule may be obtained at the TJC Admissions and Records Office.

Van To Furnish Vets Info

A mobile van manned by two veterans benefits counselors will be in Cameron on Friday, May 6, according to Jack Coker, director of the Veterans Administration regional office in Waco.

The van will be located on the vacant lot on the corner of Main and Fannin south of the courthouse. Information and counseling services will be available for veterans and their dependants from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Objective of the van program is to reach veterans and dependants who are not taking full advantage of their benefits.

Veterans will be able to talk to VA representatives regarding educational programs, employment, job training, home loans, medical benefits, disability compensation, pensions, life insurance, death benefits, and other veteral - related benefits.

Change Told In GI Bill

A change in GI Bill payment procedures, effective June 1, 1977, will bring checks at the end of the month rather than at the beginning to 1.5 million million veterans, dependents and service members enrolled in Veterans Administration education programs.

These and other changes are explained in a "stuffer" to be sent with April and May checks, Jack Coker, Waco VA regional director, said today.

Another June 1 change, brought about by law, modifies an arrangement which in the past automatically gave trainees a two-month money advance at the start of school.

Ending of the prepayment system will have the most noticeable effect on veteran students continuously enrolled this summer. They will receive their last VA check under the prepayment system on May 1, covering enrollment for May.

The next check, covering June enrollment, will be issued July 1. Subsequent VA checks will follow each additional month of enrollment. A student whose enrollment ends in June will receive the payment for June on July 1.

Yoemen Roll On, Blank Cougs 2-0

The Cameron Yoemen baseballers continue to roll on through the district action, Tuesday as the Yoemen played host to the Rosebud Lott Cougars, defeating them 2-0.

Yoemen pitcher Gerry Hietman was credited with the win for the Yoemen as he tossed a one hitter for the day.

The action was tight with both Yoemen runs coming in the third inning on errors by the Cougar third baseman.

It was simple and quick as Donald Komar reached third for the Yoemen followed by Dan Garcia, who double for the effort. With a runner in the scoring position Sydney Youngblood stepped up to the plate, and sent the ball rolling down the third base line. The suprised Cougar baseman couldn't find the handle, bobbling the ball and the Yoemen had the runs needed to cinch the game.

The Cougars efforts to score were foiled by pitcher Gerry Heitman as he picked off two of the Cougar runners at first base, while left fielder Mike Barr doing his share, fielded a well hit ball, tossing it home to stop a third Cougar scoring attempt.

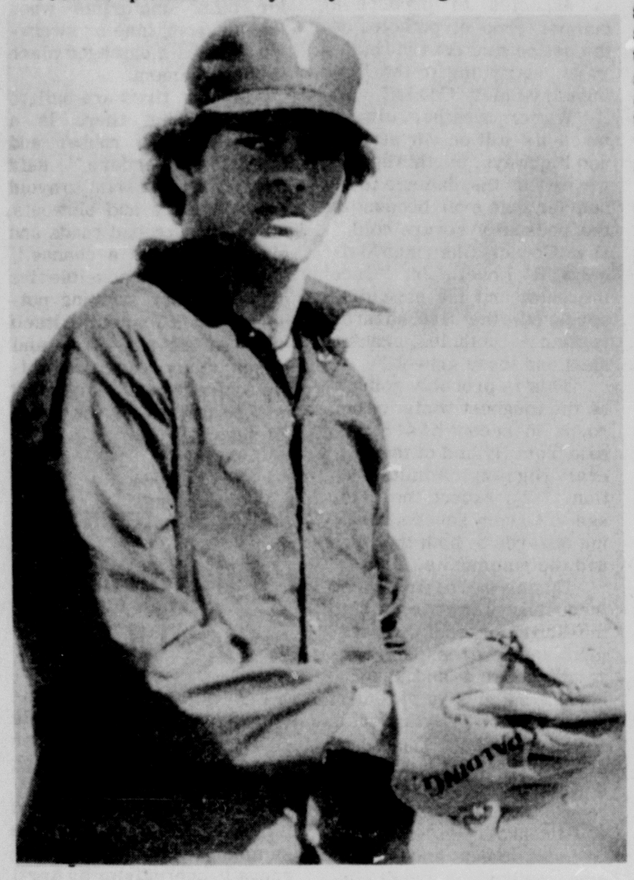
Coach Roy Knight cited Donald Komar as a standout for the day, stating, "Komar had a good day at bat, and hit well for us." Knight also added that the Yoemen hitting attack as a whole has improved in the past weeks, "It's the first time all year that we hit the ball with any power."

The Yoemen tallied six hits, with four errors for the outing.

The Yoemen are at a lose-no-more position now as they sport a 3-2 district record, and at the present are still very much alive in the 23AA district race.

The first round of district competition ends tommorow for the Yoemen as they travel South to meet their cross-county rival, the Rockdale Tigers, and if tradition holds true the game will probably go down to the wire.

When asked about the Tigers, Coach Knight said "They hit well and host a good defense, so we'll have to be up for the game.""you can bet it will be a pretty close game."



GERRY HIETMAN went the distance for the Yoemen in Tuesdays bout with Rosebud-Lott, pitching a one hitter.

DONALD KOMAR blocks the baseline and tags a runner out at third. Coach Roy Knight cited Komar as an offensive standout in Tuesdays' action.

Hunting License Fees May Increase

A bill to increase out - of - state hunting license fees has passed the Texas House and gone to the Senate, according to the sponsor, Rep. Dan Kubiak.

The bill mandates a $37.-75 charge for out - of - state small game license fees, and $75.75 for a general nonresident fee.

"For many years Texas has had the highest quality of hunting, boasting the largest number of species available for sport," Kubiak said. "As a result, many hunters visited the state to enjoy our wildlife resources; it seems only logical that these hunters contribute towards the management cost incurred in regulating the large amount of resources in the state."

CLUBS

YOE FFA

Since its organization in November 1976, the Cameron Yoe FFA Booster Club has had several projects and fund raising activities.

A bake sale in Decenber was very successful and helped to introduce the organization to citizens of Cameron and the surrounding area.

The Club participated in the Milam County Livestock Show by selling tickets for the calf and hog drawing and by contacting buyers for the champion stock. A tent set up at the show was used to hand out recipes from TAP and to familiarize the public with materials available at the County Extension Service office.

The main feature of the Booster Club booth was a display, "Salute to Milam County Agriculture" Names of businesses and individuals who have a part in agriculture were listed. plans are to make this an annual project giving proper in Milam County who have a part in farming, ranching, education, equipment, supplies, services, fianance, or any other phase of agriculture to have their names listed on the display.

Plans are being made to have a food booth at the Folk Fete in June to help raise money for Booster Club projects.

The FFA Booster Club presently has 68 members. Anyone wishing to join can contact any Booster Club member. Officers are: president, G.D. Fleming; vice president, Vernon Gage; secretary, Mrs. Edwin Marek; treasurer, Charles Moraw; and reporter, Mrs. Flirsh Ermis. Memberships are $2 per person with Company memberships available. The Club meets every third Tuesday at the Yoe High ag builiHigh ag building.

A & M Exes To Have Annual Aggie Muster

Former students of Texas A&M University will assemble in Rockdale April 21 for the annual Texas Aggie Muster, announced chairman Albert Timmerman Jr.

Activities will start at 8 p.m. at the high school cafeteria in Rockdale.

Tickets for the event are now on sale and can be purchased from Monroe Fuchs, J. D. Moore and Bill McCutchen.

Timmerman said the Muster is open to all former students and their families, parents of students and friends of Texas A&M.

Texas A&M is in its "Second Century of Greatness." During the last 100 years, the university has grown from a small land grant college to one of the leading research and educational institutions in the nation, Timmerman said.

The Aggie Muster dates back to the mid-1880's and has been held annually since. More than 350 musters will be held around the world this year.

During wars, the Aggies mustered in foxholes, on the battlefield, aboard ships, in airplanes and in hospitals. In World War II, a Muster was held on Corregidor shortly before the Japanese captured the island.

Every Muster ceremony is the same, Timmerman reported. The Aggies pay their respects to all those who are absent, because of death, since the last Muster. When the names of the missing are called from the Muster roll, a friend of the deceased answers, "Here."

BIRTHS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin R. Young, Jr. of Buckholts, a boy on April 13 at 1:44 a.m. and weighed 6 pounds and 6 ounces.

He is welcomed by a sister, Lisa, age 3.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Fleming and Mrs. Marvin R. Young, Sr. all of Cameron.

A Visit To Spain With Mrs. Holder At Library

Some people travel by car, some by plane, but many travel only by proxy.

By proxy the Friends of the Library are taking a trip to Spain with Mrs. Perry Holder. She has traveled throughout most of the world by evey conveyance used by people and by some that was not too comfortable. Her hobby for many years has been to study history and then go to see for herself if the facts are as interesting as the promise.

In June of 1976 she, Mildred Thornton, and Norinne Holman(Mrs. Holder's daughter) were in Spain. They visited Madrid with its many points of interest and then, by train; to Granada, the home of El Hambra one of the lovliest complex of buildings in the world.

She will show many pictures of Spain and give a history of the places visited.

Maurina Corley, popular vocal artist, will be featured on the program.

The Cameron Delphian Club will host the occasion with Mrs. Stanely Vodicka as Program Chairman.

The afternoon meeting will be held in the Cameron Public Library at 3:30 on April 19th.

All interested people are invited to attend.

TJC Nursing Exams Set

Entrance examinations for the Temple Junior College vocational nursing program will be given in May and June.

Dates for the examinations will be May 3, 10, 17 and 24 and June 7, 14, 21 and 28.

The examination is required of all persons planning to enter the next vocational nursing class which will begin in August.

Entrants must be a high school graduate or a GED recipient, between the ages of 18 and 54, and pass a series of aptitude tests. Applicants also must file an application, provide an immunization certificate, high school transcript, personal references and pass a physical examination.

The vocational nursing program is a one - year course and is approved by the State Board of Vocational Nurses Examiners of Texas and the Texas Education Agency. The program leads to a certificate of completion from TJC and prepares the student to write the State Board examination. Enrollment is limited to 40 students.

Persons interested in enrolling or additional information should contact the Vocational Nursing office of the Allied Health Department, Building 21, Temple Veterans Administration Center.

Do's And Don'ts Of Shaving

If you're one of the more than 60 million American men who spend about 10 minutes every day shaving, the chances are you have your own favorite technique.

Though the best way to shave has been debated almost as much as the fine points of baseball and football combined, the arguments add up to this: how to get a cleaner, longer-lasting shave with the least possible discomfort.

Rather than bearding the issue, here are some do's and don'ts for a wet shave using a safety razor.

- Do shave after a shower or bath; hot water helps soften the beard.
- Do allow 60 seconds between applying shave cream and shaving.
- Don't apply shaving cream downward. Apply it with upward strokes against the growth of the beard.
- Do wet your razor in hot water and begin by shaving cheeks first, working down from sideburn to chin on each side. Leave your chin and upper lip for last to give these tougher beard areas extra time to soften up in the lather.
- Don't forget to shave in under-the-chin areas or over the Adam's apple. You may find it helpful to hold the skin taut with your free hand.
- Do shave against the grain of the beard.
- Don't press and scrape. Shave with a light touch.
- Do see that when you rinse off the lather that none remains around your ears or in your nostrils.

Interestingly, a recent survey has found that shaving goals could be related to your social and economic background. Men at lower levels aim for the "closest" shave, and even equate a tough face-scraping shave with masculine ability to bear pain. In the upper brackets, the wish is for the "most comfortable" shave. But whatever bracket you may be in, by following these simple do's and don'ts you should be able to look forward to smooth shaving ahead.

Langdon Says Politics Will Affect President's Energy Proposals

Railroad Commissioner Jim C. Langdon today predicted the White House's soon-to-be-unveiled national energy plan will fail unless it is stripped of the politics of recrimination.

"Unfortunately," declared the Texas oil and gas regulator, "the energy problem is not merely a problem of scarcity and ever-higher prices.

"The problem is complicated by the 'politics of energy' --- recriminations, accusations and controversy. Unless President Carter can eliminate politics, particularly the politics of recrimination, from being reflected in his energy policy proposals, the plan will fail and there will be no viable, longrange national energy policy."

Langdon made this assessment in an address before an annual meeting audience of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce just five days before President Carter has said he will unfold his energy program.

Langdon said Americans "are doomed to disappointment" if they are counting on the Carter program to spur development of plentiful supplies of clean, inexpensive new energy resources.

"I know some of the people who are currently involved in drafting energy policy proposals for the President," he explained, "When one considers the role they played in creating the nations' energy problem, it is difficult to be optimistic that they will provide the correct solution."

Langdon described President Carter's recent ban on domestic use of plutonium as a terrible mistake," regardless of how well-meant.

The Texas official contended the threat of war was not reduced by the ban because plutonium, presumably, will continue to be available in other nations.

"Even so, there are probably many other possibilities that could occur as a product of deranged minds that would contribute just as great a weapon (as plutonium) when used for blackmail or extortion," Langdon observed.

The ban only increases uncertainty about government policy and raises another deterrent to solving the country's energy and national security problems, the veteran regulatory official insisted.

Langdon criticized "political opportunists in Congress" who charge energy producers with reaping "obscene profits," staging "ripoffs," and capping their oil and gas wells while "waiting for higher prices."

"This is the cheapest form of political chicanery, but the most costly in terms of social and economic damage it has inflicted upon the nation," he asserted.

Langdon reported some chairmen of congressional committees, for years, "have rigged hearings to support their own views and opinions by inviting and showcasing certain favorable witnesses and cutting off and stifling opposing views.

"Unfortunately, the media has been unwittingly used and manipulated in the process."

Langdon told the West Texas business leaders that no issue in recent years has polarized America and American opinion more than energy.

"It constitutes a grave and present danger; and unless it is recognized and effectively dealt with, the fabric of this nation will be torn apart and the country destroyed," he warned.

Of the various divisive actions of politicians, the most counter-productive is the popularized idéa of punishing the industry for the nation's energy shortages, Langdon said.

Val Verde Baptist Sets Memorial Day

The 84th annual memorial day service will be held at the Val Verde Baptist Church on Sunday, April 24.

The morning session will begin at 10:30 with Rev. Charles Gilbert, a former pastor, bringing the message. Bobby Killough will be master of ceremonies, Howard Lee Pierce song leader, and Sarah Shelton pianist.

A basket lunch will be served during the noon hour at the church tabernacle.

The afternoon session will begin at 2 and will feature congregational singing, special music and short talks by Rev. David Cannon and Rev. Wiley Wilson.

Everyone is invited to come and enjoy the day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mrs. Bess Jeter

Dear Bess:

The Milam County Historical Commission wishes to express its appreciation to you for the invaluable news coverage you have given us during the past year. Without the news media, such a project as the opening of the museum could not have been accomplished without your wholehearted cooperation.

This letter is just a token of our personal esteem for you and your work, and the hope of continued support in the future.
